Playing Doubles

Some games (donkey kong, pacman, galaga) require players to use the same controls. The original design of these games was based on taking turns using the same controls. As one player would play until his turn ended and then the other player would step up and take his turn on the same controls.

But if you want to play two player games with seperate controls then you would have to start it from the ends where both players are facing each other (cocktail mode). To switch the orientation of the screen you must do it from the game selection screen by hitting the Cocktail/Standup orientation button that is shown in Figure B. This only applies if you have a cocktail table

Figure D

Volume Control

Some games may be louder than others and the volume can be adjusted to preference. To adjust the volume you have to open up the machine and locate the amplifier that has 4 knobs on it and looks similar to Figure D. Once you locate that amplifier you simply just turn the volume knob counter clockwise to lower and clockwise to raise.

Setting up machine to take quarters

Figure E

- Step 1. Locate the coin assimulator in front of the machine and open the coin door.
- Step 2. Put in a sample quarter into the caddy tray as shown in figures D and E above
- Step 3. Find the green QC sticker and pull up on it. It may be easier to lift up on it with the spring disconnected.
- Step 4. Once you have it up, then you want to put your sample quarter in the cut as shown in figure E (the yellow disc is a dummy coin that you need to replace with a real one).
- Step 5. After you put your quarter in the caddy, then lower it back down.

Fine tuning the coin caddy will take a number of attempts to ensure accurate alignment when it is setups correctly, then the quarter should fall all the way through. If it gets caught then the sample quarter is not in correctly and you must hit the coin return lever to get it out and reinsert the sample quarter again. NOTE: the machine must be on for this to work. It may take a couple of tries but it will work just keep trying!

De-activate freeplay when using coin acceptor

Note that this process is for our Tabletop Flip Model

To finish setting up your machine to take quarters you must de-activate the freeplay button on the control panel and to do this you must open up the machine on the coin door side and look up to the right and you should see something similar to figure f.

The blue button is the freeplay button and the red switch is to turn off the freeplay button that is on the control panel.

IMPORTANT To activate FreePlay again, the switch must be flipped back on to use the freeplay button on the main control panel
